OLD GLORY FLIES ON CHIMBORAZO

Shot and Bugle Note Give Signal to Run Up the Colors.

PATRIOTIC

Mr. Davis Bottom Presents and Mr. Roland Childrey Receives Flag.

Amid ringing cheers that reached the welkin, the tri-colored embiazonry of "Old Glory" was hoisted yesterday afternoon on the flag staff of Chimborazo It was a fitting finale in the dedication of the new school and a becoming tribute to the patriotism of the Junior Order of American Mechanics.

The stirring note of a bugle at the lips of young Eddle Wade, an urchin of the school, heralded the moment when the colors were to rise. Slowly and majestieally the flag, drawn by the hands of Mr. Pierce, ascended to the pinnacle of the staff, where it floated proudly to breeze of heaven. Then another bugle note rang out to the accompanithe staff, where it linted products to every breeze of heaven. Then another busile note rang out to the accompaniment of five hundred little throats, as the emblem of Liberty and Freedems wung to the wind. Hais were off, and the inherent patriotism of the native born found vent in a thrill as cheer.

The Juniors had prepared a most appropriate programme for the occasion of the flag raising. The master of ceromonies Mr. J. B. Burroughs, made an announcement of the programme, which began with the singing of "Columbia, Gem of the clean," by the whole school. Under the able direction of Mr. Walter C. Mercer the little youngsters swelled to the inspiring strains, and the triumphant song reached the vaulted roof in a note of praise. Rev. Mr. Cooper, paster of St. James Methodist Church, offered a prayer, and then Mr. Burroughs read to an attentive audience the principles of the order that had donated the flag.

MR. BOTTOM SPEAKS.

The presentation address was delivered by Mr. Davis Bottom, past State councillor, who in a few simple words spoke on the attitude of his order toward education, and said that Juniors had an abiding faith in the public school system, which is doing so much in freeing the children of the land from the bondage of ignorance. His order, he said, desired to teach patriotism, which could be taught to better advantage when children are more easily impressed with objects than with words; hence the sift of the flag. To the children, said he, must be committed the destiny of the country when their fathers had made their long jobrney. And if the fathers could do no more, they at least wished to leave behind them a lesson of loyalty, patriotism and love of country. The speaker then bade the teachers and children God speed in their work, and

The address of acceptance was made by appliance by his short-spoken message of patriotism and liberty, in which he said that he would like to see the flag of Old Virginia mated with that of the Union on every school mast in the State. All Joined in singing, "My Country, Tis of Thee," after which a vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Mercer for his efficient training of the pupils. And then, as the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner" died away, the committee, followed by the children and visitors, left the building for the street, where the flag raising was to be viewed.

The sun flared down in billiding rays, but every eye was upturned when the

The sun nared down in blanding rays, but every eye was upturned when the signal shot was fired and the bugle sounded that the flag was to ascend. And then, as the last note of the bugle became hushed and the Stars and Stripes were floating in the cerulean blue school and audience sang in modulated voices the Doxplogy. Rev. Mr. Cooper pronounced the benediction, and the ceremony was ended.

Since the publication in The Times-Dispatch of the batting averages of the players in the Twin City League, a dispute has arisen as to which player on the Richmond team was entitled to a bat, offered by a Richmond firm, for the man who made the highest batting percentage. The question was between Knightley, the hardworking and faithful calcher, and Jones, the fast little shortstop for the Richmond team. In the batting averages printed, both Knightley and Jones were credited with a percentage of .237.
